The Centre du cinéma et de l'audiovisuel (Cinema and Audiovisual Centre) of Belgium's French Community and Quebec's Société de développement des entreprises culturelles (Society for the Development of Cultural Enterprises - SODEC) signed a protocol of understanding on 2 October 1997. This follows on from the co-operation agreement concluded between the government of Quebec and the Executive of Belgium's French Community on 3 November 1982.

According to this protocol, the parties will, by means of reciprocal exchanges of information, promote the visibility of their cinema and the production of television programmes and cinematographic works. In particular, it provides for co-operation at the time of the various festivals or international markets and for the possibility of co-financing film projects. The main aim of this co-operation is the maintenance of a high level of French-language production.

The protocol sets up a Monitoring Committee, whose task is to adapt the conditions for applying the protocol in order to resolve any difficulties associated with its implementation. The protocol was concluded for a renewable period of three years. It will be renewed on 20 Mai 2006.
